

Renovation Projects To Add Value To Your Home

By Tracey Lammert, Resident

Are you stuck at home during Covid-19? Here's a list of seven renovation projects you can do to keep busy and add value to your property.

The right renovations can add value to your home and make it a more pleasant place to live. But finding time to tackle home improvements can be challenging when life gets busy. These days, however, there's a good chance you're largely homebound due to the COVID-19 outbreak, so you might as well take the opportunity to spruce up your living space.

Here are a few easy projects you can look at tackling yourself:

1. Paint your walls

There's nothing like a fresh coat of paint to breathe life into a room. Pick some colors that will enhance your space and change things up.

2. Clean, sand, and paint your deck or fence

If you have a wooden deck or fence on your property, you're no doubt aware that these features require regular maintenance. Now that the weather is getting warmer, take the time to wash, sand, and repaint your deck or fence so it's in better shape by mid-spring. It'll give you a good excuse to get some fresh air at a time when you may be going stir-crazy indoors.

3. Paint your front door

Your front door may not be getting a lot of attention these days, what with the lack of visitors and a limited number of places you can go outside the home. But that doesn't mean you can't jazz it up a bit. Replacing a white door with a red or blue one will help your home stand out – and give bored neighbors something nice to look at if they venture out for a walk.

4. Pressure-wash your siding

Vinyl siding can accumulate debris and mildew, making it look unsightly. If that's the case for your home, rent a pressure washer and give your home's exterior a thorough cleaning.

5. Put up a new kitchen backsplash

Something as simple as a backsplash that runs the length of your countertops can transform your kitchen. Find some unique mosaic tile and put in the time to update what's likely the most frequently used room in the house.

6. Reorganize your garage with shelving and storage

How many times have you promised yourself you'd work on getting your garage tidy and into better shape? Well, now's the time to do it. Clear out items you no longer need, and put up shelving so that space stays organized.

7. Update your bathroom and kitchen hardware

Replacing old knobs and drawer pulls with new ones can be time-consuming, but if you're already stuck at home, you might as well tackle the job. Find hardware you like and give your bathrooms and kitchen a whole new look.

It's not easy being stuck at home, but since that's the scenario most of us are facing right now, you might as well use this time to make some improvements.
